Spurgeon has just such a voice as the late Matt.Carpenter. He is stout, full whiskered and looks more like a shop-keeper than a great preacher. He makes a wonderfully effective prayer -more effective in our mind than his sermons. He speaks without effort and is very graceful in his delivery.

THE Troy Chief has no use for Judge Thacher as candidate for Governor. The Chief thinks Thacher has thrown away his chance to ever become Governor. That paper, badly as it hates St. John, would rather support St. John than Thacher. The Chief further avers that were Thacher nated, a defeat like that of last fall would ensue. We think ourself there is no great, growing, pressing iemand that Thacher should be a candidate. There are men much more deserving of the office than be Such a man as John A. Not only is he eminent as a straightforward and consistent Republican in our own state but in all the states, and it is right, it is just, ed that postmasters who fail to notify that his distinguished services both in the field for his country, and in the

Those living in the vicinity of the great lakes have reposed in fancied security, impressed with the belief that cyclones would never visit those regious; but on last Friday one of the most destructive cyclones which has yet been reported struck Racine, Wis., on the shore of Lake Michigan. Over one hundred and fifty structures were razed, some twenty-five persons killed and scores badly injured. The cyclone was confined in its course principally to the outskirts of the city, and the loss of life was principally among mechanics and laboring people. When the storm struck the lake water was thrown into the air seventy-five feet. On the same day cyclones prevailed in Missouri, Illinois and Iowa. The loss of life in Illinois is computed at from 61 to 63, given by counties and

It is being demonstrated that the cyclone is confined to no State but is liable to come upon us at any moment wherever we may be sojourning. We should be upon our guard every day during the months of May and June —the months which are considered the "cyclone months."

THE statement is made that Roscoe Conkling has said that the Government will soon be in the hands of the Democrats. We do not believe that Conkling has said anything of the kind, nor do we think that he believes anything of the kind. Republicans all have a high regard for this great statesman, but if it should be true, as represented, that he is "sulking in his tent" and wishes to the bottom of his heart that the devil may take our party, they will no longer have use for Roscoe Conkling. We have had too much confidence in the patriotism and loyalty and honor of Conkling, to believe that he would for one moment give aid or comfort to the opposition, just because he has been disappointed in his political kopes and ambitions. It will take strong proof to convince us that he has any traitorous designs or wishes. All along the line it is sounded that Republicanism is looking up, and the chiefs in the close states are confidant of victory in 1884. Should Conkling or any other party chief plot mischief for the campaign of '84, it will sink them forever in the shades of oblivion. The traitor in that day, no matter how "fine may be his Italian hand," will not be allowed to "deliver the goods." The great literary names of the country stand for domestic purity and the home virtues. Irving did not marry; but after Miss Hoffman's death he lived like a true knight, carrying his heart for an invisible bride. Longfellow's home was sweet and beautiful as any poem he ever wrote. Nothing could exceed the genial pleas-antness of the home life of Bryant; of the Danas, father and son; of Haw-thorne, whose gifted wife gave him so much cheer and aid in his work; of Bayard Taylor, and of Dr. Holland. Emerson's home at Concord was an idyl, and hard-hearted people who isited him did not wonder that he talked so loftily and sweetly and be-lieved that all human beings have an angel side. The advocates of the prosecution of the work of tunneling under the Brit-ish Channel now turn upon the opish Channel now turn upon the op-ponents of that enterprise the very ar-gument used not long since against themselves. It was contended that the tunnel, if completed, would take away that defense from England which arises from its insularity; that a hostile army might pop through the hole in the ground and upset things generally. Now comes Sir E. Watkin forward and says that he looks upon the tunnel as an absolute necessity for ferward and says that he looks upon the tunnel as an absolute necessity for the safety of the country. As England is dependent on the outside world for food, a successful blockade, which is by no means an impossible event, would starve her into submission. But, provided France was not at war with her, in case of blockade she would be fed through the tunnel. England, after having been scared out of the idea of a tunnel, may be scared into it again.

A New York dentist tells a curious story that may be of interest to devoted levers. A young lady with beautiful teeth came to him and asked to have them drawn, as their shape was not fashionable, and she wished to get in the corn-kernel affairs that are most admired just now. Though he remonstrated, she was obdurate, and, rather than have the job transferred to another office, the dentist extracted the beautiful but outre uppers. The young lady got a false set that cost $300. About the same time the lover of the young lady, who caught behind the bat with a base ball club, had his teeth knocked out by a stray bat, and went to the dentist for repairs. The tooth doctor arranged the molars he had taken from the gold belle on plates and clapped them into the vacancy in the young man's mouth, who now goes about serving with the frontals of this girl, whose essence pervades his system. And the girl knows it.

It is said that 50,000 people die annually in the United States alone from this disease. In some sections of the country one death in every three is from Consumption. This can be and should be avoided; our people are too careless about an ordinary cough or cold, and other symptoms of throat and lung affections that lead to this disease. You should arrest it while it is in the germ. Two or three doses of Dr. Bosanko's Cough and Lung Syrup will relieve an ordinary cough or cold. It does not dry up a cough like many preparations on the market and leave the disease behind it, but acts directly on the throat and bronchial tubes, removing all the phlegm and morbid matter that accumulates in the throat and lungs.
